Wesley Offers a New Way to Job Search

Handshake is the job search network that Wesley has chosen to connect our students to employment and internship opportunities. It works like LinkedIn where you make a profile, but is a closed network where employers are looking specifically for college students and choose to connect with Wesley. It has updated technology that will even suggest jobs based on your searches and your major. The profile you create will show:

- Past work experience and employers
- Current and future goals for desired career paths
- Current skills possessed to be used as beneficial components in the workforce that is desired

Once you graduate and find a job, use the platform to help stay connected with Wesley. You will receive a survey asking “What are you doing now?” and you will even be able to see how your classmates answer the same questions (completely anonymously though – you will not see their names and they will not see yours). Later, if you want to find a new job, you can use Handshake to expand your career and find new opportunities. Take advantage of this resource, contact Kendall Wilson-Lamourine, Career Adviser, at careerservices@wesley.edu or stop by PL 14!
Every two years, scientists from the mid-Atlantic region come together to present and discuss important research regarding our vital ecosystems at the Delaware Wetlands Conference. Topics of discussion range from coastal resilience, remediation, restoration, hydrodynamics, and the policies that are meant to protect and preserve the precious habitats of wetlands. These environments are a critical part of everyday life by protecting our shorelines, reducing the impacts of flooding, absorbing pollutants, providing nutrients and a habitat for surrounding vegetation and wildlife.

Students at Wesley College have a part in bringing attention to some of the threats that local wetlands are facing and to share them at events like these. Yearly summer internships and directed research allow for students to conduct studies with their mentors to further understand these changing environmental processes. Student poster competitions allow for our research to be communicated and networked with mentors, possible employers, and scientists who are researching similar topics. This year, I participated with two projects regarding microplastics in local rivers and a study about the growth of Eastern red cedar tree growth being impacted by climate change. Dr. Stephanie Stotts, the associate professor of environmental studies here at Wesley also gave a talk about these red cedars and their response to flooding events with the help of EPSCoR research interns, Joseph Howard and Savannah Love.

With the help of the Delaware Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control, the Delaware National Estuarine Research Reserve, Wetland Monitoring & Assessment Program, and the many generous sponsors of the conference, it is possible to share important and exciting research to further understand the environment around us. Internships and conference expenses were covered by Delaware EPSCoR, Project WICCED.

Discussion on April 1 at 11a and 8p.

Pro Tips: Public Safety

Newbie: Put this number in your phone now:

(302) 736-2436

Intermediate: See something that just doesn’t seem right? Use I’m Aware to text-a-tip. Text ‘imaware’ to 79516 followed by your concern. Public Safety will look into it.

Advanced: Need a jump start? Locked your keys in your car? Make use of the Vehicle Assistance Program. Public Safety can help you!

Pro: Get to know your officers. From crime prevention checks to security reminders, Public Safety is staying proactive. Garrick Cornish, Director of Public Safety, shares that “Overall we wear a lot of hats and are willing to help wherever needed. Even if it is not a typical function of Public Safety we still assist to find the answer.”
