Dear Students,

Now that we are in the middle of registration for the spring semester, we are receiving more questions than usual from students and faculty. The DSU acquisition has created uncertainty for students who wonder how they should respond to this situation. Some are wondering if they should just switch schools now and go to DSU, but they are afraid their Wesley courses will not transfer fully if they do that. Some are also asking what courses they should take in the spring that will transfer to DSU. We realize that there are a lot more questions out there, and this email is intended to answer some of them for you.

Please be assured that DSU is committed to equitable treatment and reasonable accommodation for all Wesley College (WC) students. DSU plans to absorb all of WC’s programs and is already working collaboratively on programmatic articulation agreements with WC’s program and department chairs. This collaboration includes supporting WC students in completing degree program(s)/credentials in an appropriate amount of time.

- The best thing that you can do now is to continue on the path that you have been following at WC. Follow the WC requirements for your degree program as you register for spring classes. Articulation agreements for each program will help you to continue at DSU without losing progress toward your degree completion. This is the shared goal of the collaboration and articulation process.

- Do not worry about which courses will transfer to DSU. The collaboration between DSU and WC has established that the WC student will not be treated as a typical ‘Transfer’ student. Your WC coursework will be treated differently, and this is being addressed by the articulation agreements currently in development.

- If you have been considering adding a minor, concentration, or perhaps even a double major – make that change NOW so that you are counted in the program numbers we submit to DSU.

We are making every effort to make sure all current Wesley college students are fully supported in this transition process. Please reach out if you need any additional information.

Sincerely,

Pat Seunarine
